Outling to Williamsburg.

Charming and interesting plans have been made by the women of the Peterkin Guild of St. James Episcopal Church for their annual excursion Easter Monday to Williamsburg. This outling is always one of the leading social events of the spring season, and many parties for the event have already been arranged. The members of the guild include some of the best known society women of the city, and no effort is being spared to make the excursion a very delightful one.

Besides visiting the Old Bruton Church, William and Mary College, the Eastern State Hospital and other interesting sights in the old historic town of Williamsburg, the excursionists who wish to do so can also visit historic Yorktown, the scene of Cornwallis's surrender.

PINE ASSOCIATION MEETS

Lumber Manufacturers of Three States Convene at Norfolk.

Norfolk Va., March 26.—The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the North Carolina Pine Association. composed of lumber manufacturers in Virginia and North and South Carolina, began here to-day with a large attendance. President Horton Corwin, Jr., of Edenton, N. C., touching in his annual address upon the Federal and State antitruit away, declared that these were not intended to "repress enterprise or to close the avenue of useful information," but "to suppress monopoly and unlawful combinations in restrains of trade."

Secretary W. B. Roper called attention to the "ever-recurring subject of workmen's compensation or employers' liability." He declared that a bill on this subject, recently before the Virginia Legislature, while opposed by the employing interests of the State, "had many good points and could be used as the basis for satisfactory legislation."

"TAP LINES" GET PORTION OF RATES

Allowance Causes Serious Depletion of Railway Revenues, I. C. C. Alleges.

Washington, March 26 .- Serious depletion of railway revenues through allowance to lumber "tap lines" of a part of through rates was alleged n an argument filed to-day with the Supreme Court by Chief Counsel Joseph W. Folk and Charles W. Need-ham, of the Interstate Commerce haim, of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Consideration of the "tap line" cases, to be argued before the Supreme Court about April 6, has been watched with keen interest because of their bearing upon the application by Eastern railroads for a 5 per cent increase in rates. Witnesses have told the commission that the railroads might meet the situation now confronting them by reducing unnecessary expenditures, rather than increasing their income.

"The owners of these tap lines are not in the railroad business," declared the brief filed to-day. "They are lumbermer with logging roads as a part of their plant facilities. If by doing a little outside common carriage busibermer with logging roads as a part of their plant facilities. If by doing a little outside common carriage business they can secure $500,000 in rebates upon their lumber rates, and the commission is without power to prohibit this thing, then rebating is legalized so long as the interests of lumber merchants induce them to dabble a little in railroading.

The practice condemned in these cases result in very serious depiction of railway revenues, and cast upon the general public a burden which belongs to individuals and favored shippers. They create grave discrimination between shippers, and give to favored shippers undue preferences.

The brief pointed out that the commission was convinced that a conservative estimate of the commissions paid by regular lines to industrial lines throughout the country amounted to not less than $50,000,000 a year. It was said that during 1912, the Pennsylvania paid $1,019,000 in divisions out of the rate to ten industrial railways, $660,057, and the Baltimore and Ohie to thirteen, over $530,000.
